MORE COVER ART NEEDED!

Unique Zoitiques

By Cindy Michalak

With no rhyme nor reason for my column this month, I chose to write about Goldscheider figurines. While I normally write about seven items per issue, I happened to have nine different Goldscheiders, so please bear with me as I add two additional statues to this issue.

In 1885, Friedrich Goldscheider founded the Goldscheider and Majolica Factories in Vienna. In 1938 the Goldscheider family emigrated to the UK and USA where two brothers, Walter and Marcel, each opened a ceramic factory. Several of the Goldscheider artists eventually worked at places such as Augarten, Keramos, Rosenthal and Meissen. The company used a large G with Goldscheider circled beneath that for their mark. Later on Goldscheider added the name Everlast or Goldcrest. The Goldscheider brothers passed away in the early 1960s.

This is the smallest Borzoi figurine (that I am aware of) produced by Goldscheider and has the Goldcrest mark. Measuring 5½" the ceramic material is very easily broken at an ankle mint. These are one of the easiest to find out of all of the Goldscheiders, although not truly common. Value on these is around $50-$75.

Mexico and USA both produced a copy of this next Goldscheider piece. However, if you look at them side by side, you can tell that the Goldscheider is more refined in looks, but the piece itself weighs a lot.

Measuring 13" x 6½", this has the newer Everlast mark. Lying with mouth open panting, this is probably one of the least desired of all. I believe this is due to the copies which are readily available. However, the Goldscheider is much more collectable and should fetch at least $75.

The next two statues I believe to be the earliest Goldscheiders. The ceramic is lightweight and the figures themselves are much more refined. It is very rare to see a Goldscheider placed upon a base but the base itself is marked with the Goldscheider stamp as well as Made in Austria etched into the ceramic, which indicates the base is original to the statue. This measures 14" long x 7½" tall. As one of the rarer earliest pieces, the value on this is approximately $175.

This next one has the same mark and engravings as the prior one. My thinking is that it was made as a mate to the standing-on-base Borzoi. Measuring 12½" long x 5" tall, it is also a hard to find figure and should be valued around $150.

While not a real exciting piece, this is probably one of the rarest ones. I have never come across another Goldscheider like this. It stands 7½" tall x 8" long and has only the "G" on the bottom of a foot, so it's hard to tell was made in Vienna, the UK or is higher on this than one may due to the availability or lack I would guess $150 would be a if it is from the USA. Value I think is higher than one may think thereof, and a reasonable price.

Maybe it's just me, but the figurine here is one I refer to as the boa constrictor Borzoi. I say that because the neck ruff is accentuated at the sides making it look like a boa ready to strike. One of the older Goldscheider's has the Made in Austria mark. Measuring 10" x 13",

The Importance of Good Sportsmanship

by Ron Williams

When I was first introduced to the world of showing dogs, I had no idea of the complexity of this sport. I was in my mid-twenties and very active participating in other sports. Therefore, success in this “so-called-sport” should be automatic...NOT!

I quickly found out that being an athlete wasn't the key to success! Whether the dog is of high or medium quality, you still need to know what to do with it. You need to know how to show off their attributes and hide their faults. You need to know what to do when your dog surprises you and doesn't behave as they do every time at home.

I strongly believe most people entering the world of dog showing find out very quickly, as I did, how complex handling a dog can be. Many of these folks don't have access to classes, or knowledgeable and good-hearted friends who are ring savvy. In some breeds, a professional handler friend told me, if you're not in the clubs, or in someone's camp, you're rarely spoken to. He proceeded to say the Borzoi ring is a joy, because there's a general love for the breed and respect for each other. I agreed.

I was lucky to have access to advantages that many do not. I was introduced to dog shows by Dr. Alfred Edlin, a breeder/judge. We went to handling classes during the winter. In the warmer months we rotated classes at the homes of people like Barbara Skinner, Carol Kubiak Zamora, Angela and Peter San Palo, Jim Heard and the late Barry Ellison. At these classes we evaluated the dogs and handlers and went through actual ring situations. We even video taped some of the classes and studied them afterwards over coffee and pastries. For a rookie like me, this was such a valuable and wonderful experience.

Still, the best experience is the ring! In my early days, Fred had told me to watch certain handlers in the ring. Notice how they handle temporary misbehaving dogs and how they get the most out of their dogs. You'll also notice, they'll do a fair amount of winning or placements. I always had someone at ringside to answer any questions I might have. I took all this experience and knowledge into the ring with me and felt fairly comfortable until one day, Fred says “I entered two shows on the same day. You're going south and I'm going north.” SOLO??? PANIC!!!!

Without my security blanket, I nervously arrived at ringside. While waiting for judging, I suddenly started to question everything I thought I knew. Are bitches judged before dogs, what's the order of the classes, what's the name of this dog at the end of the lead? Seeing a familiar face (Karen Staudt Cartabona) eased some of my nervousness. She asked, “Where's Fred?” I told her, “I'm going solo today!” She smiled.

Once judging started, Karen made sure I knew when to go in, which I soon was to discover, was the same class as she. Then she wished me good luck! She really made me feel at ease. I took the points that day! The last thing Karen said to me was “make sure you bring a catalog back to Fred. He'd want to know the results of the show today.”

I thought my experience that day was just wonderful. A fellow competitor making sure I presented my dog the best I could. To this day I try to be a friendly and helpful competitor to all my co-exhibitors.

So you see, I've been lucky to be surrounded by people who wanted me to do the best I can do! They are all lovers of Borzoi and appreciate when a dog is presented well.

There are many new faces each year in the show ring. We as lovers of the breed need to embrace them and make them feel at home. Should we approach someone when show after show they obviously have no clue on how to present their dog? If nothing else we should at least suggest handling classes and match shows. A tactful, goodhearted approach with a smile goes a long way.

The FAST class is scored a bit differently. Instead of starting with 100 points (clean run) and having points deducted along with time faults, each team runs to accumulate as many points (each obstacle is worth a certain number of points) along with completing a bonus. The team is awarded a qualifying score with a score equivalent to the points earned minus any time faults.

it is one of the harder to find statues and valued at about $130.

A huge and very heavy ceramic figurine, this Goldscheider resembles the second one in this column but the mouth is closed and the head is better proportioned. This is actually one of the newer (but still old) statues since the mark is Goldscheider USA Everlast Corp. It measures a magnificent 17" long x 8" tall. With it being so large, it is difficult to fit it in even the largest cabinet you may have. However, for me – where there's a will, there's a way. Very difficult to find due to the size and I value this at $400.

Best for last is this stunning Borzoi by Goldscheider that has a little more animation to it by looking backwards. The tail is tremendously long the way you'd hope your real Borzoi would have. It measures 14" tall x 12" long. This also has the Goldscheider USA Everlast Corp mark, but on another foot, there is the word "Great" in the same coloring as the other marks; however I cannot make out what is after that. Maybe it said Great Britain, but I have no way of confirming that as I've never seen that before. Huge and very desirable, I value this at $500.

Some may think of the Goldscheiders as drab and boring due to the lack of extreme hair sculpture for producing figurines. They and white only color is a personal admires in a with. Whatever The main thing breed that you ing, but I so many do seem to favor the black Borzoi. Maybe that's the they ever saw. Collecting preference; what one person sculpture, another may not agree you choose to collect is up to you. is to have fun collecting and enjoy the love so much.
